Hadrian's Wall in our Time

edited by David J. Breeze

The cutting down of the tree in Sycamore Gap on Hadrian's Wall in September 2023 caused widespread shock in Britain and beyond, and for many was felt as a personal loss. Since its appearance in the film Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves in 1991, the tree has become the iconic view of Hadrian's Wall. In a positive response to this sad event, David Breeze, author of several books on Hadrian's Wall, invited 80 friends and colleagues to nominate their favourite view of the Wall. The views are presented in a visual celebration with photographs and specially commissioned line drawings, each accompanied by personal reflections. The wide-ranging contributions are testimony to the affection many hold for this evocative Roman frontier.

Paperback; H 206 x W 206mm; 236pp; 21 b/w line drawings, 75 colour figures, 15 b/w figures.

Frontiers of the Roman Empire Series

"These succinct but extremely well-illustrated multi-lingual books are an essential entry point into the many regional variations of Roman frontiers. They serve both an academic/student audience wanting an up-to-date synthesis of the state of knowledge, but also a wider general public."

David Mattingly, Professor of Roman Archaeology, University of Leicester

The Hinterland of Hadrian's Wall

David J. Breeze

In this important and beautifully illustrated book, David Breeze elucidates the context of the most famous frontier, Hadrian's Wall. The zone to north and south of the Wall was a heavily militarised landscape of roads, bridges, forts, fortlets and towers, but also the towns, settlements and supply infrastructure on which the army depended.

The Saxon Shore and the Maritime Coast

Tony Wilmott et al.

The North Sea and Channel coasts form the geographic frontier of the Roman Empire with the sea – the edge of the then known world. This border represents a page in military maritime history, but its coasts, in Great Britain, the Netherlands, Belgium and France, contain archaeological sites of high heritage value that deserve a large audience.

Archaeopress Roman Sites Series

A new series of accessible summaries for key Roman sites written by various regional specialists and overseen by series editor David J. Breeze.

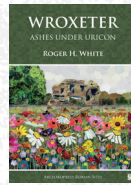

Exeter: A Roman Legionary Fortress and Civitas Capital

John Pammont Salvatore

This accessible summary of the archaeological evidence from Roman Exeter reveals its origins as a legionary fortress garrisoned by the Second Augustan Legion. After the legion departed to Wales, Exeter became a Roman regional capital and continued to flourish on the very western edge of the Empire before its ultimate demise in the late 4th century.

Paperback | ISBN 9781803276281 | 2024 | RRP: £24.99
PDF eBook: £16.00

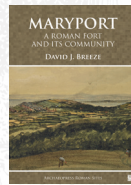

Wroxeter: Ashes under Uricon A Cultural and Social History of the Roman City

Roger H. White

This book reflects on how people over time have viewed the abandoned Roman city of Wroxeter in Shropshire. It responds to three main artistic outputs: poetry, images and texts. It explores what locals and visitors thought of the site over time, and considers how access to the site has altered, impacting on who visits and what is understood.

Paperback | ISBN 9781803272498 | 2022 | RRP: £26.00
PDF eBook: £14.99

Maryport: A Roman Fort and Its Community

David J. Breeze

The collection of Roman inscribed stones and sculpture, together with other Roman objects found at Maryport in Cumbria, is the oldest archaeological collection in Britain still in private hands. David Breeze places the collection in context and describes the history of research at the site.

Paperback | ISBN 9781784918019 | 2018 | RRP: £14.99
PDF eBook: £16.00
